

Regulatory Systems (Building and Housing) Amendment Bill

Government Bill

As reported from the Local Government and Environment Committee

Commentary

Recommendation

The Local Government and Environment Committee has examined the Regulatory Systems (Building and Housing) Amendment Bill and recommends by majority that it be passed with the amendments shown.

Introduction

The Regulatory Systems (Building and Housing) Amendment Bill is one of three omnibus bills that aim to reduce the chance of regulatory failure by updating existing legislation. The others are the Regulatory Systems (Workplace Relations) Amendment Bill and the Regulatory Systems (Commercial Matters) Amendment Bill.

This bill specifically aims to improve effectiveness and efficiency in the areas of building and housing.

The bill as introduced proposes amendments to two Acts: the Building Act 2004 and the Unit Titles Act 2010. The amendments to the Building Act are largely targeted at fixing minor drafting errors in the legislation. The amendments to the Unit Titles Act aim to clarify and reduce unnecessary compliance burdens related to:

- unit plans
- body corporate operational rules
- reassessment of ownership interests and utility interests
- registration of easements and covenants
- leases and licenses of common property
- extraordinary general meetings of a body corporate.

This commentary covers the main amendments that we recommend to the bill. It does not cover minor or technical amendments.

Unit Titles Act Policy Review

We note that the Ministry of Business, Innovation and Employment is working on a wider review of the Unit Titles Act. The Minister of Building and Construction released a discussion document on 21 December 2016.¹ The ministry will be consulting on the changes recommended in the document until 3 March 2017.

We note that the changes proposed in the Regulatory Systems (Building and Housing) Amendment Bill pre-date the review, and are complementary to it. Many of the submissions we received recommended changes outside the scope of this bill. We have asked officials to invite these submitters to submit on the ministry's review.

Inserting a “status of examples” provision

We note that clause 41 of the bill proposes adding a new example to the Unit Titles Act. To avoid any confusion over this or any future examples, we recommend adding a “status of examples” provision to the bill. New section 9AA would clarify that examples are illustrative only, and do not limit the relevant provision. It would also make it plain that if an example and the related provision were inconsistent, the provision would take precedence.

Clarifying reassessment dates

Clause 20 deals with reassessing ownership and utility interests in unit plans. In the bill as introduced, reassessment would take effect on either:

- the date determined in a special resolution of the body corporate
- or the date of the valuer's certificate.

When both dates apply, the reassessment would commence on the earlier of the two dates.

We heard from the New Zealand Law Society that this clause is inconsistent with other, similar, provisions in the Unit Titles Act. We were advised that this inconsistency is part of a wider policy matter. We therefore encourage the Law Society to reiterate its point in a submission on the review of the Unit Titles Act.

Because addressing the wider policy issue is outside the scope of this bill, we do not make any recommendations as a result of this inconsistency. However, we recommend that clause 20(4) be amended to make it as clear as possible. It is our intention that, in doing this, we will be able to reduce any confusion the inconsistency might cause.

Calling extraordinary general meetings of a body corporate

Clauses 32 and 33 address how to call extraordinary general meetings of bodies corporate. They specify who may call these meetings, and the timeframes for calling and holding them.

We were advised that clauses 32 and 33 would be more appropriate as regulations, rather than as part of the bill. As a result, we recommend amending clauses 32 and 33 of the bill, as well as clause 48.

We understand that the Ministry of Business, Innovation and Employment intends to propose new regulations to address timeframes and notice for extraordinary general meetings.

Appendix

Committee process

The Regulatory Systems (Building and Housing) Amendment Bill was referred to the committee on 18 October 2016. The closing date for submissions was 2 December 2016. We received and considered six submissions from interested groups and individuals. We heard oral evidence from two submitters.

We received advice from the Ministry of Business, Innovation and Employment and from Land Information New Zealand.
