1889, No. 17.—Local.

AN ACT to authorise the Construction of certain Public Works at the Mouth of the Waimea River, in Blind Bay, Nelson. Title.

[2nd September, 1889.]

WHEREAS the Waimea River, in the Waimea County, discharges itself into the sea at Blind Bay by two mouths, one running out to the eastward of an island called Rabbit Island, and the other to the westward thereof: And whereas between the said mouths from their point of divergence and the said island there are mud-flats not ordinarily covered by water except at high tide, and the said flats could be made available for public use if works were constructed to confine the river so as to cause its discharge solely through the eastern mouth, and to prevent the flow of the tide over the mud-flats by closing the western mouth of the said river: And whereas for the purpose of the construction of such works special authority would be required for the temporary occupation of parts of the Rabbit Island, the same being reserved as a quarantine-ground: And whereas it is expedient that the said mud-flats should be vested in the Waimea County Council, and that the said County Council should be empowered to enter into contracts for the construction of the aforesaid works and the reclamation of the said mud-flats: Preamble.
