(ii) equal, for each branch equivalent tax debit, the reduction under section RG 7 (Reduction of payments for conduit tax relief) of a company's liability to pay FDP to the Commissioner for the foreign dividend.

Use of CTR-relief amount

(2) The consolidated BETA group may not choose under section OP 101 to apply the CTR-relief amount to satisfy an income tax liability except by an election—

(ii) for branch equivalent tax debits arising at the same time and not reduced to zero by the credit, reducing each debit in proportion to the contribution of the debit to the total of the debits; and

(c) if the treatment of a branch equivalent tax credit is not given by paragraph (b), treating the credit as—

(i) reducing branch equivalent tax debits arising from the payment of FDP in the order in which the debits arise; and

(ii) after all branch equivalent tax debits arising from the payment of FDP are reduced to zero, reducing debits arising from a reduction of FDP under section RG 7 in the order in which the debits arise; and

(iii) for branch equivalent tax debits subject to the same subparagraph and arising at the same time and not reduced to zero by the credit, reducing each debit in proportion to the contribution of the debit to the total of the debits; and

(d) counting an amount of a branch equivalent tax credit only once in the reduction of some or all of a branch equivalent tax debit.

OZ 3 Overpaid income tax or foreign dividend payment for pre-imputation income year

Debit

(1) An ICA company has an imputation debit for an amount of overpaid income tax and foreign dividend payment (FDP) that is applied, when the company is not a foreign dividend payment account (FDPA) company, to satisfy the company's income tax liability under BB 1 (Imposition of income tax) for a pre-imputation income year. Subsection (2) overrides this subsection.

No debit

(2) The debit does not include an amount of overpaid income tax and FDP that is—

(a) paid before an imputation debit under section OB 41 (ICA debit for loss of shareholder continuity); and

(b) no more than the debit for loss of shareholder continuity.

Table references

(3) The imputation debit in subsection (1) is referred to in table O2: imputation debits, row 11 (overpayment of income tax or FDP). The imputation debit in subsection (2)(a) is referred to in table O2: imputation debits, row 14 (debit for loss of shareholder continuity).

Debit date

(4) The debit date is the day the amount is applied.

(b) credits arising after 16 December 1988 and before 1 April 1992 are treated as 1 credit arising on 1 April 1992 and, until such time as the credit can be treated as cancelled by later debits,—

(i) the shareholder continuity requirement applying to the credit is the earlier version of the requirement incorporated in section 394E(2)(g) of the Income Tax Act 1976 (despite its repeal and replacement by section 51 of the Income Tax Act Amendment Act (No 2) 1992); and

(ii) the earlier version of the requirement of section 394E(2)(g) applies by reading the figure "66" instead of the figure "75".

OZ 5 ASCA lost excess available subscribed capital

When this section applies

(1) This section applies when a public unit trust or a group investment fund that derives category A income—

(a) is in existence between 17 October 2002 and 30 September 2003 (both dates inclusive); and

(b) has redeemed a unit in the trust or fund; and

(c) the slice rule was used to determine the tax treatment of the proceeds from the redemption; and

(d) the amount of the available subscribed capital, calculated on a per unit basis, is greater than the proceeds from the redemption for the unit.

Calculating opening balance

(2) The trust or fund may choose for the period to calculate an opening credit balance using 1 of the methods set out in subsections (3) and (4).

Method 1

(3) Method 1 requires the trust or fund to calculate the actual amount of available subscribed capital lost, that is the difference, in total, between the amount paid on subscription for a unit and the amount paid on redemption of the unit.

Method 2

(4) Method 2 requires the trust or fund to make a calculation for the notional winding up of the trust or fund by taking the following steps:

(a) step 1: determine the total amount of income tax that would be payable on liquidation, treating the value of assets and liabilities as determined at their market value at the date of the notional liquidation according to provisions applying at that date:

(b) step 2: determine the amount of notional credits that are available after notional tax is paid in relation to them:

(c) step 3: determine the amount of notional credits required to fully impute, for each unit holder, the payment of a redemption dividend, and aggregate the amounts, applying the maximum imputation ratio to the total amount:

(d) step 4: establish the imputation credit shortfall between the notional credits under step 2 and the credits required under step 3.

Opening balance

(5) The amount of the opening balance is—

(a) the amount of the difference for method 1; and

(b) the shortfall referred to in subsection (4)(d) for method 2.

Certain causes of shortfalls

(6) For the purposes of subsection (4), the structural features of the taxation and imputation systems that would allow a company that does not issue shares on terms subject to section CD 22(4) (Returns of capital: off-market share cancellations) to fully impute a distribution made on the liquidation of the company, include the tax effects of—

(a) non-taxable gains and losses, including exempt income; and

(b) imputation credits lost because shareholder continuity is lost; and

(c) foreign tax credits; and

(d) retained earnings generated before the trust or fund established an imputation credit account.

Date of notional liquidation, orderly calculations

(7) For the purposes of this section,—

(a) the date of notional liquidation is the date chosen by the trust or fund falling in the period referred to in subsection (1)(a):

(b) a calculation under this section must be undertaken in a manner consistent with the preparation of financial statements and unit pricing calculations, based on an orderly realisation of assets in the ordinary course of business and demonstrable market valuations.

Defined in this Act: amount, available subscribed capital, business, category A income, company, dividend, exempt income, financial statements, foreign tax, group investment fund, imputation credit, imputation credit account, imputation ratio, liquidation, pay, public unit trust, share, shareholder, slice rule

(a) redeems a share within the meaning in paragraphs (c) and (d) of the definition of share in section YA 1 (Definitions); and

(b) has never established an ASC account.

Election

(2) The company may choose to establish an ASC account, and the only ASC credit arising in the account is an ASC credit for an opening balance calculated under section OZ 5(5).

Closing balance

(3) An opening balance under subsection (2) is treated as the closing balance of the account.

Calculating provisional tax liability

RC 5 Methods for calculating provisional tax liability

Choice of method

(1) A person liable to pay provisional tax must calculate the amount payable for a tax year using 1 of the methods described in subsections (2) to (7).

Standard method: 5% uplift

(2) Under the standard method, the amount of provisional tax payable for the tax year is 105% of the person's residual income tax for the preceding tax year, determined under section RC 6. Subsection (3) overrides this subsection.

Standard method: 10% uplift

(3) Despite subsection (2), the amount of provisional tax payable for the tax year is 110% of the person's residual income tax for the tax year before the preceding tax year if—

(a) they are required to provide a return of income for the preceding tax year; and

(b) the return is not due on or before the date on which the first payment of provisional tax for the tax year is required through the application of section 37 of the Tax Administration Act 1994, or an extension granted under that section; and

(c) they have not provided the return on or before that date; and

(d) the date is not the date of instalment F for the corresponding income year.

Relationships and modification of standard method

(4) Subsections (5) to (7) override subsection (3). Sections RZ 3 (Standard method: 2010–11 to 2012–13 income years) and RZ 5D (Standard method or GST method: transition for Maori authorities) modify subsections (2) and (3).

Estimation method

(5) The person may estimate their provisional tax liability for the tax year under section RC 7.

GST ratio method

(6) A person who is eligible under section RC 16 and not excluded by section RC 17 may choose to use a goods and services tax (GST) ratio under section RC 8 to determine their provisional tax liability for the tax year.

Commissioner's determination

(7) If the Commissioner determines a person's provisional tax liability under section 119 of the Tax Administration Act 1994, the amount or liability is that last determined by the Commissioner and notified to the person at least 30 days before the instalment date. The 30-day requirement does not apply in a case to which section 119(1)(d) of that Act applies (which relates to an estimate of residual income tax that is not fair and reasonable).

Life insurance business

(8) A person who carries on a business of providing life insurance and who is liable for income tax under the life insurance rules, must at the time they determine their provisional tax liability provide the Commissioner with details of the calculation of that liability. In particular, they must detail the extent to which the amount of provisional tax relates to the policyholder base.

Defined in this Act: amount, business, Commissioner, corresponding income year, GST ratio, income tax, instalment date, life insurance, life insurance rules, notify, pay, policyholder base, provisional tax, residual income tax, return of income, tax year

Section RC 5(4): amended (with effect on 1 October 2010), on 21 December 2010, by section 121 of the Taxation (GST and Remedial Matters) Act 2010 (2010, No 130).

Section RC 5(4): amended, on 1 October 2010, by section 25 of the Taxation (Budget Measures) Act 2010 (2010 No 27).

Section RC 5(4): amended, on 1 October 2008, by section 39 of the Taxation (Personal Tax Cuts, Annual Rates, and Remedial Matters) Act 2008 (2008 No 36).

RC 6 Standard method

When this section applies

(1) This section applies to a person liable to pay provisional tax for the purposes of section RC 5(2) and (3) and the calculation of the amount of provisional tax payable for a tax year under the standard method.

Assessment for preceding tax year

(2) The person's residual income tax for a tax year is based on their assessment for the preceding tax year unless the Commissioner has sent out a notice of assessment for the tax year at least 30 days before the relevant instalment date, in which case the amount of residual income tax is based on the Commissioner's assessment for the preceding tax year.

Commissioner's assessment for preceding tax year

(3) The person's residual income tax is based on the Commissioner's assessment for the preceding tax year, whenever the assessment is made, if—

(a) they are required under sections 33 and 37 of the Tax Administration Act 1994 to provide a return of income for the preceding tax year but have failed to do so by the relevant instalment date; or

(b) they are not required under sections 33 and 37 of that Act to provide a return by the relevant instalment date, and subsections (2) and (4) do not apply.

Residual income tax for preceding tax year

(4) The amount of provisional tax payable for a tax year is the amount of the person's residual income tax for the preceding tax year if—

(a) they are not required to provide a return of income for the preceding tax year; or

(b) their residual income tax for the tax year before the preceding tax year was $2,500 or less, and they were not required to provide, and have not provided, a return of income for the tax year by the date of instalment F for the corresponding income year.

Later increased assessment

(5) If the Commissioner's assessment of a person's income tax liability occurs after the payment date for an instalment of provisional tax and would result in an increase in the person's residual income tax for the preceding tax year, the residual income tax is treated for the purposes of the provisional tax rules as if it had not been increased.

Transitional years and consolidated groups

(6) A person's residual income tax in a transitional year is calculated under section RC 20. For consolidated groups, the calculation is made under section RC 29.

Defined in this Act: amount, assessment, Commissioner, consolidated group, corresponding income year, income tax liability, instalment date, notice, pay, provisional tax, provisional tax rules, residual income tax, return of income, tax year, transitional year

Compare: 2004 No 35 s MB 5

RC 7 Estimation method

When this section applies

(1) This section applies to a person who is liable to pay provisional tax under section RC 5(5) and to the calculation of the amount of their provisional tax payable for a tax year under the estimation method.

Fair and reasonable estimate

(2) On or before an instalment date, the person may make a fair and reasonable estimate of their residual income tax for the tax year by informing the Commissioner of the estimate. The amount of provisional tax payable for a tax year is the amount of the estimated residual income tax.

Revising estimates

(3) The person may choose to revise an estimate made under subsection (2) before an instalment date. The amount last estimated is the amount taken into account under section RC 5(5).

Reasonable care in making and maintaining assessment

(4) A person who makes an estimate under subsection (2) must take reasonable care in making it, and must revise the estimate for the tax year if, at some time in the tax year, the amount estimated is no longer fair and reasonable.

Estimation higher than provisional tax payable

(5) If a person's estimate is more than the provisional tax that is payable for the tax year, they are treated as having taken reasonable care in making the estimate.

Changing calculation method from GST ratio

(6) If, under section RC 18(5), a person changes the way they determine the amount of provisional tax after the date of an instalment, they must estimate their residual income tax for their corresponding income year, and must pay provisional tax on whichever of the following instalment dates for the income year occur after 30 days from their last ratio instalment date:

(a) C and F for changes to a 6-monthly GST taxable period:

(b) B, D, and F for other changes.

RC 8 GST ratio method

Using GST ratio

(1) A person liable to pay provisional tax who meets the requirements of section RC 16 and is not excluded by section RC 17 may choose to use a GST ratio to determine the amount of provisional tax payable for a tax year.

Meaning of GST ratio

(2) The person's GST ratio is the percentage figure that is obtained by dividing their residual income tax for the preceding tax year by their total taxable supplies for the corresponding income year. The amount of residual income tax and the amount of total taxable supplies are called base amounts for the purposes of this section.

When amounts based on tax year before preceding tax year

(3) If a base amount for the preceding tax year or corresponding income year is not known, the GST ratio is the percentage based on the assessment for the tax year and corresponding income year that are just before the preceding tax year and corresponding income year.

When no assessment for tax year before preceding tax year

(3B) Subsection (3) does not apply and the GST ratio is the percentage based on the assessments of the base amounts for the year that is 2 years before the preceding tax year if—

(a) for the year before the preceding tax year—

(i) an assessment of a base amount has not been made and the absence of an assessment arises because of an extension of time for filing a return for the year, or a period in the year:

(ii) an assessment of a base amount is the subject of a dispute or challenge under the Tax Administration Act 1994:

(iii) the year is a transitional year; and

(b) for the year that is 2 years before the preceding tax year—

(i) the base amounts have been assessed; and

(ii) the circumstances in paragraph (a)(ii) and (iii) do not exist.

Commissioner's calculation

(4) The Commissioner must calculate a person's GST ratio, informing them by—

(a) including the percentage figure on the person's preprinted GST return form; or

(b) advising them in writing or by telephone; or

(c) some other means.

Adjustment to GST ratio

(5) The Commissioner must adjust a person's GST ratio if a base amount is revised through, among other reasons,—

(a) an assessment or an amended assessment of the person's income tax return for the preceding tax year; or

(b) a change in the value of the total taxable supplies for the corresponding income year; or

(c) the disposal of an asset to which section RC 19 applies.

New GST ratio

(6) When subsection (5) applies, the Commissioner must inform the person of the new GST ratio. The new ratio applies in relation to the relevant instalment dates that occur 30 days after the date on which the person is informed.

Transitional years

(7) If a person has paid instalments of provisional tax in a transitional year, for the tax year that follows the transitional year, for the purposes of this section and section RC 11, they must—

(a) ignore the transitional year when determining their residual income tax or total taxable supplies; and

(b) base their determination of residual income tax and total taxable supplies on the tax year preceding the transitional year.

When no assessment for tax year before preceding tax year

(7B) Subsection (7) does not apply and the GST ratio is the percentage based on the assessments of the base amounts for the year that is 2 years before the transitional year if—

(a) for the year before the transitional year—

(i) an assessment of a base amount has not been made and the absence of an assessment arises because of an extension of time for filing a return for the year, or a period in the year:

(ii) an assessment of a base amount is the subject of a dispute or challenge under the Tax Administration Act 1994:

(iii) the year is a transitional year; and

(b) for the year that is 2 years before the transitional year—

(i) the base amounts have been assessed; and

(ii) the circumstances in paragraph (a)(ii) and (iii) do not exist.

Total taxable supplies

(8) In subsections (2), (5), and (7), and in sections RC 11, RC 19, and RC 31, total taxable supplies, for a person and a period, means the amount that is the total value of taxable supplies by the person for the period. The amount includes the GST charged on the supplies.

Modification

(9) Sections RZ 4 (GST ratio method: 2010–11 to 2013–14 income years) and RZ 5D (Standard method or GST method: transition for Maori authorities) modify this section.

Defined in this Act: amount, assessment, base amount, Commissioner, corresponding income year, GST, GST ratio, income tax, instalment date, pay, provisional tax, residual income tax, return, tax year, taxable supply, total taxable supplies, transitional year

Instalments of provisional tax

RC 9 Provisional tax payable in instalments

Who this section applies to

(1) This section applies to a person who is liable to pay provisional tax.

General principle

(2) For a person liable to pay provisional tax using the standard and estimation methods, the amount of the provisional tax liability must be spread evenly over the applicable number of instalments, so that equal amounts are paid on each instalment date. If the full amount is not divisible into exactly equal instalments, the final instalment carries the difference.

Provisional tax payable in 3 instalments

(3) A person pays provisional tax in 3 instalments on the interest instalment dates for the tax year in the months set out in schedule 3, part A, columns B, D, and F (Payment of provisional tax and terminal tax) for the person's corresponding income year. The amount of each instalment is calculated under section RC 10. Subsection (4) overrides this subsection.

Exclusions

(4) Subsection (3) does not apply—

(a) to a person liable to pay provisional tax who—

(i) pays GST on a 6-monthly basis; or

(ii) uses a GST ratio to determine the amount of provisional tax payable, or who changes their calculation method under section RC 18(5); or

(iii) changes the cycle of their taxable periods under section 15C of the Goods and Services Tax Act 1985:

(b) to a person with an initial provisional tax liability who—

(i) pays GST on a 6-monthly basis; or

(ii) pays GST on a monthly or 2-monthly basis, and starts a taxable activity within 30 days before the date of instalment B in their corresponding income year:

(c) to a person liable to pay provisional tax who has not provided a return of income for the preceding tax year, and whose residual income tax for the tax year before the preceding tax year was $2,500 or less:

(d) in a transitional year.

Provisional tax when GST paid on 6-monthly basis

(5) A person liable to pay provisional tax who pays GST on a 6-monthly basis must pay provisional tax on the 2 interest instalment dates for the tax year in the months set out in schedule 3, part A, columns C and F for their corresponding income year. This subsection applies to a person with an initial provisional tax liability other than 1 who pays GST on a 6-monthly basis and starts a taxable activity within 30 days before the date of instalment C.

Provisional tax determined using GST ratio

(6) A person liable to pay provisional tax who uses a GST ratio to determine the amount of provisional tax payable for a tax year, must pay provisional tax on the 6 ratio instalment dates in the months set out in schedule 3, part A, columns A to F for their corresponding income year. The amount of each instalment is calculated under section RC 11.

Changing calculation method

(7) A person who is unable or who decides not to use a GST ratio, changing their calculation method under section RC 18, must pay the provisional tax payable for the tax year on the relevant instalment dates under the replacement method. The amount of each instalment is calculated under section RC 10.

Changing cycle of taxable periods

(8) A person who changes the cycle of their taxable periods under section 15C of the Goods and Services Tax Act 1985 must pay provisional tax for the tax year on the instalment dates set out in section RC 27 after the change in taxable period takes effect. The amount of each instalment is calculated under section RC 10.

Persons with initial provisional tax liability

(9) A person with a new provisional tax liability who starts a taxable activity in a tax year is liable to pay interest calculated under section 120KC of the Tax Administration Act 1994 as if they were liable to pay provisional tax for the tax year—

(a) in 3 instalments under subsection (3) if they start a taxable activity at some time in the period that starts at the beginning of the corresponding income year and ends 30 days before the date of instalment B:

(b) in 2 instalments—

(i) in a case to which section RC 13 applies; or

(ii) if they pay GST on a 6-monthly basis and start a taxable activity at some time in the period that starts at the beginning of the corresponding income year and ends 30 days before the date of instalment C:

(c) in 1 instalment in a case to which section RC 14 applies.

Extension of time for return

(10) A person who has not provided a return of income for a preceding tax year and whose residual income tax for the tax year before the preceding tax year was $2,500 or less must pay provisional tax for the tax year on the instalment dates set out in section RC 13 or RC 14, as applicable.

Transitional years

(11) In a transitional year, provisional tax is payable as set out in section RC 21 and schedule 3, part B. The amount of each instalment is calculated under sections RC 22 to RC 24.

Voluntary payments

(12) A person liable to pay provisional tax may pay an instalment under section RC 12 at any time.

Defined in this Act: amount, corresponding income year, final instalment, GST, GST ratio, initial provisional tax liability, instalment date, interest instalment date, pay, provisional tax, ratio instalment date, residual income tax, return of income, tax year, taxable activity, taxable period, transitional year

Section RC 9(9): amended, on 1 April 2008, by section 529(2) of the Taxation (Business Taxation and Remedial Matters) Act 2007 (2007 No 109).

Section RC 9(9)(b)(ii): substituted, on 1 April 2008, by section 529(3) of the Taxation (Business Taxation and Remedial Matters) Act 2007 (2007 No 109).

RC 10 Calculating amount of instalment under standard and estimation methods

When this section applies

(1) This section applies for the purposes of—

(a) section RC 5(2), (3), and (5) (which relates to the calculation of a provisional tax liability); and

(b) section RC 9(3) and (5) (which relates to payment of instalments); and

(c) sections RC 13 and RC 14 (which relate to persons with an initial provisional tax liability and those with an extension of time for providing a return); and

(d) sections RC 26 and RC 27 (which relate to changes in taxable periods).

Calculation

(2) The amount of an instalment of provisional tax is calculated using the formula—

$$\text{residual income tax} \times \frac{\text{instalment number}}{\text{total instalments}} - \text{provisional tax.}$$

Definition of items in formula

(3) In the formula,—

(a) residual income tax is a person's residual income tax, as applicable—

(i) for the preceding tax year, uplifted by 5% (modified as applicable by sections RZ 5 (Calculating amounts under standard method: 2010–11 to 2012–13 income years) and RZ 5D (Standard method or GST method: transition for Maori authorities); or

(ii) for the tax year before the preceding tax year, uplifted by 10% (modified as applicable by sections RZ 5 and RZ 5D); or

(iii) the amount estimated by them:

(b) instalment number is the number of the instalment for the tax year, whether first, second, or third:

(c) total instalments is the total number of instalments for the tax year:

(d) provisional tax is the amount of a person's provisional tax liabilities for the tax year to date.

Instalment amounts after change in balance date or taxable period

(4) If a change occurs to the balance date or cycle of a person's taxable periods, the calculation of the amount of an instalment is made under this section, applying the updated figures to the items in the formula.

Defined in this Act: amount, balance date, initial provisional tax liability, pay, provisional tax, residual income tax, return of income, tax year, taxable period

RC 11 Calculating amount of instalment using GST ratio

Calculation

(1) For a person who uses a GST ratio, the amount of provisional tax payable on an instalment date for a tax year is calculated using the formula—

GST ratio for tax year × total taxable supplies.

Definition of item in formula

(2) In the formula, total taxable supplies is the amount of the person's total taxable supplies in the taxable period that matches the instalment period.

Changing method before date of instalment A

(4) If the person is unable or decides not to use a GST ratio before the date of instalment A, they may choose to determine the amount of provisional tax payable under section RC 5(2), (3) or (5). The person is treated as never having chosen to use the GST ratio method and, for the purposes of section 120KE(5) of the Tax Administration Act 1994, as never having changed the way they determine an amount of provisional tax under this section.

Changing method after instalment date

(5) If the person is unable or decides not to use the GST ratio after an instalment date, they must determine the amount of provisional tax payable on instalment for the remainder of the income year under section RC 5(5) using the estimation method. For this purpose, the person may provide the estimate in writing or by telephone.

Date of application when method changed

(6) If the person changes their calculation method under subsection (4) or (5), the date on which the change applies may be a future date agreed between the person and the Commissioner.

Other consequences of changing method

(7) For the purposes of this section,—

(a) the number of instalments and the instalment dates remaining for an income year depend on—

Informing Commissioner

(3) For the purposes of subsection (2), the person must inform the Commissioner of both the disposal of the asset and the value of its supply, and may do this either in writing or by telephone.

(2) For the sum of the amounts referred to in subsection (1) listed in the following paragraphs, the amount of tax for the extra pay that must be withheld is the amount determined using the basic amounts of tax for PAYE income payments set out in the relevant row of schedule 2, part B, table 1 (Basic tax rates for PAYE income payments):

(a) if the sum of the amounts is $14,000 or less, the amount determined by applying row 1:

(b) if the sum of the amounts is more than $14,000 but not more than $48,000, the amount determined by applying row 2:

(c) if the sum of the amounts is more than $48,000 but not more than $70,000, the amount determined by applying row 3:

(d) if the sum of the amounts is more than $70,000, the amount determined by applying row 4.

When secondary tax codes apply

(a) extra pay is the amount of the employee's extra pay:

(b) annualised amount is the amount given by subsections (1)(b) and (1B):

RD 23 Bonds given by employers of certain non-resident employees

When this section applies

(1) This section applies if it cannot reasonably be determined at the time an employer or PAYE intermediary is required to withhold the amount of tax for a PAYE income payment whether the payment will be exempt income of an employee under either section CW 19 (Amounts derived during short-term visits) or a double tax agreement.

Providing bond

(2) The employer or PAYE intermediary may apply to the Commissioner to be released from their obligation to withhold the amount by providing a bond or other security for the amount that would be required to be withheld but for this section.

Consequences of acceptance of bond

(3) If the Commissioner accepts the bond or security referred to in subsection (2),—

(a) the employer or PAYE intermediary must not withhold the amount of tax for a PAYE income payment to the employee; and

(b) information concerning the employee must not be included in an employer monthly schedule; and

(c) the no notification rate referred to in section 24B(3)(h) of the Tax Administration Act 1994 must not be used in relation to the PAYE income payment.

When subsection (3) no longer applies

(4) If the employee later becomes liable to pay income tax because of an event provided for in an arrangement made under section BH 1 (Double tax agreements) or CW 19, the application of subsection (3) ends, and the employer or PAYE intermediary must withhold the amount of tax for a PAYE income payment made to the employee.

Employee's liability

(5) If the Commissioner considers that the employee is liable for income tax in relation to a PAYE income payment from which no amount of tax is withheld because of the application of subsection (3), the Commissioner must notify the employer or PAYE intermediary, as applicable. The employer or intermediary must then account for and pay the total amount of tax for all PAYE income payments that would have been due, or a lesser amount as the Commissioner determines.

Treatment of amount paid under subsection (5)

(6) An amount paid to the Commissioner under subsection (5) is treated as the amount of tax for a PAYE income payment made on the date of the Commissioner's notice. section 120U of the Tax Administration Act 1994 overrides this subsection.

Defined in this Act: amount, amount of tax, arrangement, Commissioner, double tax agreement, employee, employer, employer monthly schedule, exempt income, income tax, notify, pay, PAYE income payment, PAYE intermediary

(b) the contractor provides a bond or other security for the payment of any income tax payable on an amount derived by them from a contract activity or service; or

(c) the contractor has in the period of 24 months before the date of the application referred to in subsection (2) paid all income tax payable by them and complied with their obligations under the Inland Revenue Acts, and the Commissioner is satisfied that the contractor will continue to do this.

Exemption certificate

(2) The non-resident contractor may apply to the Commissioner to provide them with an exemption certificate under section 24M of the Tax Administration Act 1994 for a contract payment made to them or another person acting on their behalf in relation to a contract activity or service set out in the certificate for which no amount of tax is to be withheld.

Defined in this Act: amount, amount of tax, Commissioner, contract activity or service, contract payment, double tax agreement, exemption certificate, income, income tax, Inland Revenue Acts, non-resident contractor, pay

RD 29 Private use of motor vehicle: formulas

What this section does

(1) This section sets out the formulas for calculating the value of the benefit that an employer provides to an employee by making a motor vehicle available for their private use.

Quarterly payment

(2) If FBT is paid quarterly, the value of the benefit is calculated using the formula—

$$\frac{\text{days} \times \text{schedule 5 amount}}{90.}$$

Annual payment

(3) If FBT is paid on an annual basis, the value of the benefit is the total of the amounts calculated under subsection (2) for the 4 quarters in the applicable tax year.

Payment by income year

(4) If FBT is paid on an income year basis, the value of the benefit is calculated using the formula—

$$\frac{\text{days} \times \text{schedule 5 amount}}{365.}$$

Definition of items in formulas

(5) In the formula,—

(a) in subsection (2), days refers to the number of days in the quarter on which the vehicle is made available for private use, reduced by the number of days on which the vehicle was a work-related vehicle, or 90, whichever is less:

(b) in subsection (4), days refers to the number of days in the income year on which the vehicle is made available for private use, reduced by the number of days on which the vehicle was a work-related vehicle:

(c) in subsections (2) and (4), schedule 5 amount refers to the amount calculated under schedule 5 (Fringe benefit values for motor vehicles) as the value of the benefit that would have been received for unlimited private use of the vehicle in that quarter or income year, as applicable.

Test period

(6) To calculate the value of the benefit, an employer may choose to use a test period under section RD 31 to establish private use.

Defined in this Act: amount, employee, employer, FBT, income year, motor vehicle, private use, quarter, tax year, work-related vehicle

Compare: 2004 No 35 s ND 1A(2)–(6)

RD 30 Private use of motor vehicle: 24-hour period

When this section applies

(1) This section applies for the purposes of a calculation of the value of a benefit under section RD 29.

Meaning of day

(2) In section RD 29(5)(a) and (b), in relation to a motor vehicle and the item days in the formulas, a day is—

(a) a 24-hour period starting from a time in a day that a person who owns or leases the vehicle chooses; or

(b) a 24-hour period starting at midnight if paragraph (a) does not apply.

Choosing starting point and notifying Commissioner

(3) For the purposes of subsection (2)(a), the person must—

(a) choose a starting point for the day that is a whole number of an hour after midnight; and

(b) notify the Commissioner of their election when filing the next return relating to the vehicle.

Elections

(4) An election under subsection (2)(a)—

(a) is effective from the start of the quarter, income year, or tax year to which a return relates; and

(b) applies to all vehicles in relation to which the person files a return.

Hour applying for 2 income years

(5) If the person chooses under subsection (3)(a) a particular hour in the 24-hour period as the starting point of the day, that hour continues to apply to the use of the vehicle from the start of the relevant quarter, income year, or tax year, as applicable, for a minimum period of 2 income years.

When circumstances change

(6) An employer may ask the Commissioner to amend the starting point of the 24-hour period, or to treat the election as revoked, if the employer's circumstances have changed in a way that—

(a) is more than minor; and

(b) makes the starting point no longer relevant to the employer's business.

Defined in this Act: business, Commissioner, day, employer, income year, motor vehicle, notify, quarter, tax year

Compare: 2004 No 35 s ND 1AB

RD 31 Motor vehicle test period

Recording details for test period

(1) To establish the value of the benefit provided through a motor vehicle being made available to an employee for their private use, an employer may choose to record the details of the use of the vehicle by the employee for a test period.

Number used in calculations

(2) The number of days on which a vehicle is available for an employee's private use that is ascertained in the test period is the number used in the calculation in section RD 29(2). For the calculation in RD 29(4), the relevant number is the number of days ascertained in the test period multiplied by 4.

Quarter or 3 months for test period

(3) If FBT is paid quarterly or annually, the test period is a quarter. If FBT is paid on an income year basis, the test period is 3 consecutive months of an income year.

Period showing pattern of use

(4) The employer must—

(a) choose a test period that shows, or is likely to show, a pattern of use of the motor vehicle by the employee that fairly represents the use of the vehicle by the employee over the whole of the applicable term; and

(b) keep a record of the test period, including accurate details of the days in the period on which the vehicle is available for the employee's private use.

Work-related vehicles

(5) In subsection (4), a day on which the vehicle is a work-related vehicle is treated as a day on which the vehicle is not available for private use.

Term of 3 years

(6) The number of days of availability for private use ascertained in the test period applies for a term of 3 years. The term starts, as applicable, as follows:

(a) if FBT is paid quarterly, on the first day of the test period:

(b) if FBT is paid on an annual basis, on the first day of the tax year in which the test period occurs:

(c) if FBT is paid on an income year basis, on the first day of the income year in which the test period occurs.

Reduction of term

(7) The term referred to in subsection (6) is reduced if the number of days of actual private use of the motor vehicle is 20%, or more than 20%, higher than the number ascertained in the test period. In this case, the term ends on the last day of the applicable quarter, year, or income year. If the employer chooses to start another test period, the existing term ends just before the start of the new term.

When test period no longer representative

(8) If the Commissioner considers that the result ascertained in the test period does not, or does no longer, fairly represent the actual private use of the motor vehicle by the employee, the Commissioner may notify the employer that the term will end on a particular date. Following notification, the employer must not use that result again.

Defined in this Act: Commissioner, employee, employer, FBT, income year, motor vehicle, notify, private use, quarter, tax year, work-related vehicle

Compare: 2004 No 35 s ND 1B(1)–(6)

RD 32 Replacement motor vehicles

For the purposes of section RD 31, a replacement motor vehicle is treated in the same way as the vehicle it replaces if the result ascertained in the test period is likely to be fairly representative of the average availability for the private use of the vehicle during the term.

Defined in this Act: motor vehicle, private use

Compare: 2004 No 35 s ND 1B(7)

Percentage of highest public fare

(1) The value of a benefit that an employer provides to their employee in subsidised transport is 25% of the highest fare the employer charges the public for the equivalent transport in terms of class, extent, and occasion. This subsection is overridden by subsection (2).

When benefit provided under arrangement

(2) Despite section CX 2(2) (Meaning of fringe benefit), if the fringe benefit is provided under an arrangement with a third person, the value of the benefit is determined under subsection (3).

Percentage or actual payment

(3) If a third person provides the employee with subsidised transport under an arrangement with their employer, the value of the benefit is the greatest of—

(a) 25% of the highest fare the employer charges the public for the equivalent transport in terms of class, extent, and occasion; and

(b) 25% of the highest fare the third person charges the public for the equivalent transport in terms of class, extent, and occasion, if the third person is a company in the same group of companies as the employer; and (c) the amount that the employer has paid or is liable to pay the person for the benefit provided.

If a fringe benefit is provided by making available a motor vehicle to an employee for their private use, and the vehicle is owned in part by the employee (or, if section GB 32 (Benefits provided to employee's associates) applies, a person associated with the employee), the taxable value of the fringe benefit is determined under section RD 56 or RD 57.

RD 56 Private use of motor vehicle: when schedular value not used

When this section applies

Reduction

(2) In the calculation of the taxable value of the fringe benefit, the value of the benefit determined under sections RD 28 to RD 30 is reduced by an amount that is the applicable percentage of the cost (determined including GST under schedule 5, clause 8(a)) of the motor vehicle to the employee or the associated person as follows:

(b) if FBT is paid on an annual basis, 2.5% for each quarter in which the vehicle was part-owned by the employee or the associated person:

When period longer or shorter than income year

(3) In subsection (2)(c) and section RD 57(2)(c) and (3), if the period for which the employer accounts for FBT differs from a normal income year for the reasons described in subsection (4), the amount by which the taxable value of the fringe benefit is reduced is a percentage of the cost (determined including GST under schedule 5, clause 8(a)) of the motor vehicle to the employer or the associated person equal to the amount calculated using the formula—

$$\frac{10\% \times \text{number of days in period}}{365.}$$

Reasons for difference

(4) The period for which the employer has accounted may be longer or shorter than the normal income year because the employer has either—

(a) started or ceased business during that income year; or

(b) chosen, with the agreement of the Commissioner, to provide a fringe benefit return for the income year ending with the date of the annual balance of their accounts.

When vehicle owned less than whole year

(5) If an employee has not been part-owner of the motor vehicle for the whole of the income year, or the period referred to in subsection (4), a reduction under this section is reduced by the proportion of the number of days of the income year or period for which the employee was not a part-owner to the total number of days of that income year or period.

(a) when FBT is paid quarterly, by a percentage calculated using the formula—

2.5 + (2.5 × schedule 5 rate):

(b) when FBT is paid on an annual basis, by a percentage for each quarter in which the vehicle was part-owned by the employee or associated person calculated using the formula—

2.5 + (2.5 × schedule 5 rate):

(c) when FBT is paid on an income year basis, by a percentage calculated using the formula—

10 + (10 × schedule 5 rate).

ZA 3 Transitional provisions

(1) A reference in an enactment or document to this Act, or to a provision of it, is to be interpreted as a reference to the Income Tax Act 2004, or the Income Tax Act 1994, or the Income Tax Act 1976, or to the corresponding provision of the earlier Act, to the extent necessary to reflect sensibly the intent of the enactment or document.

When reference to earlier Act includes this Act

(2) A reference in an enactment or document to the Income Tax Act 2004, or the Income Tax Act 1994, or the Income Tax Act 1976, or to a provision of that earlier Act, is to be interpreted as a reference to this Act, or to the corresponding provision in this Act, to the extent necessary to reflect sensibly the intent of the enactment or document.

Intention of new law

(3) The provisions of this Act, including any amendments made by this Act to the Tax Administration Act 1994, are the provisions of the Income Tax Act 2004 in rewritten form, and are intended to have the same effect as the corresponding provisions of the Income Tax Act 2004. Subsection (5) overrides this subsection.

Using old law as interpretation guide

(4) Unless a limit in subsection (5) applies, in circumstances where the meaning of a taxation law that comes into force at the commencement of this Act (the new law) is unclear or gives rise to absurdity—

(a) the wording of a taxation law that is repealed by section ZA 1 and that corresponds to the new law (the old law) must be used to determine the correct meaning of the new law; and

(b) it can be assumed that a corresponding old law provision exists for each new law provision.

Limits to subsections (3) and (4)

(5) Subsections (3) and (4) do not apply in the case of—

(a) a new law listed in schedule 51 (Identified changes in legislation); or

(ii) a public ruling is issued before the beginning of the 2008–09 income year; and

(b) the binding ruling is about—

(i) a taxation law that is repealed by section ZA 1 (the old law); or

(ii) a taxation law in the Income Tax Act 1994 that preceded and corresponded to the old law; and

(c) a new taxation law that corresponds to the old law (the new law) comes into force at the commencement of this Act; and

(d) in the absence of this section, the commencement of this Act would mean that the binding ruling would cease to apply because of section 91G of the Tax Administration Act 1994.

Ruling about new law

(2) The binding ruling is treated as if it were made about the new law, so that the effect of the ruling at the commencement of this Act is the same as its effect before the commencement.

No confirmation rulings

(3) To the extent to which a binding ruling continued by subsection (2) exists and applies to an arrangement, or to a person and an arrangement, the Commissioner must not make a binding ruling on how—

(a) the new law applies to the arrangement or to the person and the arrangement; or

(b) this subsection applies to the arrangement or to the person and the arrangement.

(d) a new taxation law that corresponds to the old law (the new law) comes into force at the commencement of this Act; and

(e) in the absence of this section, the commencement of this Act would mean that that determination would cease to apply because the taxation law to which it applied had ceased to exist.

Determination about new law

(2) The determination is treated as if it were made about the new law, so that the effect of the determination at the commencement of this Act is the same as its effect before the commencement.

No confirmation determinations

(3) To the extent to which a determination continued by subsection (2) applies, the Commissioner must not make a determination on how the new law applies.

Defined in this Act: commencement of this Act, Commissioner, taxation law

The following paragraphs apply to determine the value of the benefit that an employee has for a quarter, tax year, or income year when section RD 60 applies, if in the quarter, tax year, or income year, a motor vehicle is provided by a person for the private use of an employee, or is made available for their private use:

If a motor vehicle to which this schedule applies is 1 of a number of motor vehicles, each of which is available for private use as described in clause 1, the value of the benefit is determined as follows:

(a) if the employee mainly uses the same vehicle, clause 1 applies to that vehicle:

(b) if paragraph (a) does not apply, and the employee is employed in a business engaged in the selling of motor vehicles, and the vehicles available for use are trading stock of the business, clause 1 applies to the quotient obtained by dividing the sum of either the cost price of the vehicles or their tax value, by the total number of those vehicles:

(c) if paragraphs (a) and (b) do not apply, clause 1 applies to the highest value of any vehicle used by the employee.

In this schedule, a motor vehicle's tax value in a quarter, tax year, or income year is—

(a) the value of the vehicle as determined under subpart EE for the beginning of the tax year or income year, if paragraphs (b) and (c) do not apply; or

For the purposes of clause 3(c), the tax value of the vehicle is the value it would have under subpart EE at the beginning of the tax year or income year, or at the time of acquisition in the year, treating the cost of the vehicle on acquisition as the amount determined under—

(a) clause 5, if—

(i) the cost price was last used by person A or person B for the vehicle under clause 1:

(ii) clause 1 did not apply to the vehicle in the 2-year period referred to in clause 3(c) and neither person A nor person B has used the tax value for the vehicle under clause 1:

    (i) included in the cost price of the motor vehicle or in the calculation of the motor vehicle's tax value:
    (ii) not reduced by an amount of input tax on the supply of the vehicle to the owner or lessor:
(b) if, in the period of 2 years before the vehicle's acquisition by the person providing it to the employee, the vehicle is owned by the person or by someone associated with them, the cost price is treated as being the highest one of the cost prices paid for the vehicle by the person or an associate since its manufacture:
(c) subject to paragraph (b), the cost price of the vehicle is treated as being equal to the vehicle's market value if,—
    (i) the cost to the person who acquires the vehicle is zero; or
    (ii) the cost price is unable to be established to the satisfaction of the Commissioner by the person who acquires the vehicle; or
    (iii) at the time the vehicle is acquired, the cost price to the person who acquires the vehicle is less than the market value because of an arrangement between that person and an associated person, and that arrangement has the purpose of defeating the intent and application of the FBT rules.

Despite clause 8(a), a person who in a quarter, tax year, or income year provides a benefit that is valued under clause 1 may choose to value the vehicle on the basis of its cost price exclusive of GST or its tax value calculated exclusive of GST using clause 1 as modified by clause 10.

10

The following paragraphs apply to a person who values a vehicle on the basis of its cost price exclusive of GST or its tax value calculated exclusive of GST:

(a) the terms 'cost price' and 'tax value' in clause 1 do not include an amount of GST payable:

(b) the references to 5% in clause 1 are treated as if they were references to a percentage calculated using the formula—

5 + (5 × rate of GST applying on last day of relevant quarter):

(c) the references to 9% in clause 1 are treated as if they were references to a percentage calculated using the formula—

9 + (9 × rate of GST applying on last day of relevant quarter):

20 + (20 × rate of GST applying on last day of relevant tax year or corresponding income year):

36 + (36 × rate of GST applying on last day of relevant tax year or corresponding income year).

11

When a vehicle is leased or rented to the person after it has been leased or rented to another person (the other person), the cost price of a vehicle is its market value at the time it is first leased or rented to the person if—

Schedule 51

s ZA 3(5)

Identified changes in legislation

Provisions in Income Tax Act 2007 or Tax Administration Act 1994 (TAA)	Change
Business-related provisions, listed in the appendix to this schedule	The tax year basis for these provisions is omitted, or changed to an income year basis.
CD 39(9)(b), (c)	A dividend payable to a shareholder by a company when the amount is applied under section CD 39(9)(a) by the shareholder against a loan from the company to the shareholder includes a dividend that is paid without any withholding of an amount of resident withholding tax or non-resident withholding tax.

Provisions in Income Tax Act 2007 or Tax Administration Act 1994 (TAA)	Change
FA 3(2)	An ambiguity is removed, which ensures that an amount of the dividend is treated as being derived on the sale of the shares to the extent to which it matches any trading loss of the share dealer.
FA 5(6)	The time of association is clarified as being the time at which the associated person acquires the asset.
FA 9(2) and (3)	The time of association is clarified as being the time at which the associated person acquires the asset.
FC 2 to FC 6	The transfer on death to the executor/administrator and the subsequent transfer from the executor/administrator to the estate is treated as one transfer.
GB 1	Section GB 1(3) is clarified to confirm that the amount of the dividend derived is part of the consideration for the shares.
GB 27(2)(c)	The $60,000 threshold is clarified in order to take into account all income that would be attributed under section GB 29.
GB 35(2)(d)	The ambiguity is removed in order to clarify that multiple purposes are referred to.
GB 42(2)(d)	The ambiguity is removed in order to clarify that multiple purposes are referred to.

Provisions in Income Tax Act 2007 or Tax Administration Act 1994 (TAA)	Change
HC 27(2)	The definition of settlor is clarified so that any transfer to a trust that increases the net assets of the trust is a settlement on the trust and any deductible payments settled on a trust are included in trustee income.
HC 34(2)	The date for the payment of tax on a taxable distribution from a non-complying trust is the terminal tax date of the person liable to pay that tax.
IA 4(1)	Carried forward tax losses are used first by a person, before the losses may be grouped or otherwise used.
LA 1 to LA 10	Tax credits (other than personal and family tax credits) are used for the year that corresponds to the income year in which the credits arise.
LC 9(2)	This rule relates to the housekeeper and low income tax credits (formerly termed rebates). The policy of the rule is to apportion income of an absentee between periods of the person's absence and presence in New Zealand. The apportionment set out in the bill is on a daily basis. In the interests of simplification, the bill omits from the 2004 Act corresponding rule, the formula that apportioned the income on a "weeks" basis for persons with "regular pay periods". A change in effect is anticipated, but the omission should result at most in a small difference in outcome in favour of taxpayers. The New Zealand Law Society indicated in their submission on the bill that it would be preferable to list this as an intended change.

MC 6	The reference to veteran's pension is omitted because the in-work tax credit is an incentive to return to work.
RD 36(2)	A dividend payable to a shareholder by a company when the amount is applied under section RD 36(1) by the shareholder against a loan from the company to the shareholder includes a dividend that is paid without any withholding of an amount of resident withholding tax or non-resident withholding tax.
YA 1, definition of land	The provision is simplified and structured so that the first 3 paragraphs of the rewritten definition are to apply generally for the Act. This is consistent with the objectives of plain accessible legislation and is thought highly unlikely to result in any material change in law. However, as this change in drafting could conceivably result in a change in outcome in some circumstances, the change should be identified for readers.

Provisions in Income Tax Act 2007 or Tax Administration Act 1994 (TAA)	Change
YA 1, definition of mortgage	The definition of mortgage was introduced at a time when mortgages were subject to tax as a subset of land tax. The drafting in the bill provides for an updated and simplified term to apply generally for the Act. This is consistent with the objectives of plain accessible and up-to-date legislation and is thought highly unlikely to result in any material change in law. However, as this change in drafting could conceivably result in a change in outcome in some circumstances, the change should be identified for readers.
YA 1, definition of natural resource	A definition of natural resource is inserted for the purposes of section BH 1, and the definitions of land and New Zealand.
YA 1, definition of pay	The provision is simplified and structured so it is to apply generally for the Act. This is consistent with the objectives of plain accessible legislation and is thought highly unlikely to result in any material change in law. However, as this change in drafting could conceivably result in a change in outcome in some circumstances, the change should be identified for readers.

Schedule 51: amended (with effect on 1 April 2008), on 21 December 2010 (applying for the 2008–09 and later income years), by section 141(1) of the Taxation (GST and Remedial Matters) Act 2010 (2010, No 130).
