

Brokering (Weapons and Related Items) Controls Bill

Government Bill

As reported from the Foreign Affairs, Defence and Trade Committee

Commentary

Recommendation

The Foreign Affairs, Defence and Trade Committee has examined the Brokering (Weapons and Related Items) Controls Bill and recommends that it be passed with the amendments shown.

Introduction

The Brokering (Weapons and Related Items) Controls Bill seeks to establish a regime to regulate the brokering of weapons and related items by New Zealanders and New Zealand-based entities.

Brokering involves negotiating, arranging, or facilitating the transfer of weapons and related items from one foreign country to another. It does not include importing, exporting, or moving weapons and related items within New Zealand.

The bill would prevent New Zealanders and New Zealand entities from engaging in brokering where there is a risk of weapons or related items being transferred to illegitimate users or undesirable destinations, for example a conflict zone.

The bill would support New Zealand's commitments under the multilateral Arms Trade Treaty, which New Zealand ratified in 2014. The treaty regulates the international trade in conventional arms. Under the treaty, New Zealand is required to take measures to regulate any brokering of conventional arms that takes place within its jurisdiction. It would also support New Zealand's commitments to the four international export control regimes¹ which recognise brokering controls as a counter-proliferation tool.

This commentary covers the main amendments we recommend to the bill. It does not discuss minor or technical amendments.

Jurisdictional scope of the brokering regime

We recommend inserting new clause 3A in Part 1 of the bill to outline the jurisdictional scope of the regime. This would make it clear that the bill would apply to brokering activity that is carried out in New Zealand or elsewhere by people who are in New Zealand, and also by New Zealand citizens, people ordinarily resident in New Zealand, and entities incorporated or registered under New Zealand law, regardless of their location.

Gazette notice to be published on website

Clause 4(2) would provide for the Secretary of Foreign Affairs and Trade to specify, by notice in the Gazette, the categories or parts of the Strategic Goods List that are relevant to the definitions of dual-use goods and military end-use goods.

We recommend inserting new subclause 4(3)(b) to require the Gazette notice to be made available on the Ministry of Foreign Affairs and Trade's website.

The Regulations Review Committee expressed its concern that compliance with clause 9(1), the requirement to be registered and have a permit for brokering activity, or with the exception in clause 9(2)(b) of the bill as introduced, would rely on a person's knowledge of the status of a weapon or item. We share this concern, and consider that our recommendation would help address this by providing for the relevant information to be published on the ministry's website.

Providing clarity about the burden of proof

Clause 9(1) would require a person to register and obtain a permit to conduct brokering activity, with certain exceptions. Clause 10 would make it an offence to carry out brokering activity without meeting these requirements, unless any of the exceptions under clauses 9(2) to (4) of the bill as introduced applied, if a person knows or ought to know the registration and permit requirements.

The Office of the Clerk expressed concern that, in light of the structure of clause 9, the offence provision in clause 10 could create a risk of reversing the usual burden of proof, requiring the potential defendant to disprove an element of the offence. We understand that this is not the intention or effect of these provisions. A person would commit an offence where they carried out a brokering activity without being registered or having a permit, where none of the exceptions applied, and if they knew or ought to know the requirements. Nevertheless, we recommend some changes to provide clarity.

We recommend moving the exceptions in clauses 9(2) to (4) to new clause 9A. This would help to make them more easily identifiable as exceptions to the general requirement to register and hold a permit.

We recommend the insertion of clause 9A(1)(b), replacing clause 9(2), to remove the knowledge element (that the person did not know, and could not reasonably be expected to know) from the exception to comply with clause 9(1). Our recommended amendment would instead require a person to take reasonable steps to ensure that the dual use goods would not be used for a “prohibited use”, as defined in the bill.

We understand that if there were any evidence to suggest that an exception might apply, the onus would be on the prosecution to prove beyond reasonable doubt that the justification would not apply.

We are aware that clause 34 of the bill would require the Attorney-General to consent to any prosecution under the legislation. This additional procedural safeguard would ensure that only appropriate cases would proceed to a prosecution.

The elements of the offence

We recommend amending clause 10(1) to set out more clearly the elements of the offence. In particular, clause 10(1)(c) would provide that a person commits an offence if, when carrying out the brokering, they know or ought to know that (except in some circumstances) they must not do so unless they are registered or have a permit. The “circumstances” referred to are the exceptions in new clause 9A.

Narrowing the exception for employees

We recommend replacing clause 9(4) with clause 9A(3) which would narrow the current exception for employees. The exception would only apply to an employee who had reasonable grounds to believe that the employer was complying with the legislation in New Zealand, or an equivalent overseas regime. This would mitigate our concern that an innocent employee could be liable if the company in question was not complying with a brokering regime in New Zealand or elsewhere, and also any risk of an employee inadvertently evading liability.

As above, we note the Attorney-General’s consent to any prosecution under the legislation would act as an additional safeguard.

Annual reporting as a condition of registration

Clause 18 would provide for conditions to be imposed on a broker’s registration. We recommend inserting clause 18A(1) to provide that, as a condition of their registration, a broker must submit an annual report to the Secretary of Foreign Affairs and Trade.

Clause 18A(2) would provide that the annual report must be in the prescribed form and manner, and contain the prescribed particulars. We recommend inserting clause 38(1)(ba) to provide for the Governor-General, by Order in Council on the recommentation of the Minister of Foreign Affairs and Trade, to make regulations prescribing these things.

Period for which brokers required to keep records

We recommend amending clause 21(1) to increase the period brokers are to keep any prescribed records, from 5 to 7 years after the end of the calendar year to which the records relate. This would be consistent with requirements concerning tax records, and Fire and Emergency New Zealand contracts and levy payments.

Offences committed outside New Zealand

We recommend deleting clause 33(1)(a)(iii) so that the bill would not apply to a person who has been found in New Zealand and has not been extradited. We do not consider this provision fit for purpose within the context of the bill. It would have treated the offence as one attracting universal jurisdiction. The offence in clause 10 relates to carrying out brokering activity without the requisite registration or permit in New Zealand, rather than prohibiting engaging in brokering activity per se. We understand that foreign nationals with no physical presence in or link to New Zealand would not be registered under New Zealand's brokering regime.
