Statement of reasons

This notice, which comes into force on the day after its notification in the Gazette, amends the Securities Act (Overseas Companies) Exemption Notice 2002 (the principal notice). It extends the exemptions granted under clause 6 of the principal notice to securities that are offered to holders of securities in another overseas company under an arrangement that results in a capital reduction of that overseas company.

The Securities Commission considers that the amendment is appropriate because—

- the principal notice, which is a class notice, recognises that people who already hold securities in overseas companies have taken on the risks associated with those securities and can be assumed to have some familiarity with those companies and with the risks of ownership of securities in overseas companies. The exemptions provided by the notice mean that New Zealanders who are shareholders in listed overseas companies can participate in rights offers and offers arising from reconstructions that might otherwise not be extended to shareholders in New Zealand because of compliance costs:
- clause 6 of the principal notice facilitates the extension to New Zealand shareholders of offers arising from reconstructions, mergers, and acquisitions involving listed overseas companies. The amendment extends this part of the notice so that it applies where securities are being offered to shareholders of an overseas company under an arrangement involving the reduction of the capital of that overseas company. This is consistent with the existing application of the notice to offers where the consideration for the securities being offered is an agreement by shareholders of an overseas company to the acquisition or cancellation of shares held by them.
